PERFECT STRETCH: Roechelle Williams and Ananda Mahony.

Healthy and wholesome

A HOLISTIC approach to health and well-being is paying off for three Brisbane women.

Roechelle Williams, Karen Anderson and Ananda Mahony are the force behind Bulimba's Vitale Life.

The trio own Sowelu health and fitness centre at Paddington and this year decided to take their natural and organic wellness model across the river to set up shop on Oxford St.

They will host an open day this Saturday at their shop at 2/77 Oxford St, Bulimba.

Vitale Life operates on the belief wellness comes from balancing the physical, mental and spiritual selves.

New customers go through an assessment with Ms Anderson which includes a bio-impedance assessment, a flexibility and balance test and a strength and cardiovascular test.

"Every person is treated the same, whether they have chronic illness or are training as elite athletes," she said.

The three women offer different areas of expertise, including life coaching, exercise programs, naturopathy and skincare.

Children sing at eco fair

BRISBANE school children are going green this month for the Green Heart Fair - an event that aims to encourage Brisbane residents to live more sustainably.

The Quest Newspapers-sponsored fair, to be staged at 7th Brigade Park, Chermside, from 10am-3pm on Sunday, May 16, will showcase eco-friendly products and services, offer sustainability workshops and advice and provide free family entertainment.

Students, including those from St Kevin's Primary School at Geebung, will take part in a "Green Icon" school talent competition, in which students will sing, dance, act and perform to the message of sustainability.

Bulimba country music star Troy Cassar-Daley, who harvests rainwater and grows vegetables at home, will join fellow vocalist Amber Lawrence on stage at the event, which will also include a celebrity cooking demonstration and guest appearances from the Broncos.

The Green Heart Fair is a Brisbane City Council initiative.
